THE CHALLENGE

Why this course exists

Your HR programmes look good on paper. The employee experience deck is polished. The policies are up to date. And yet, people leave earlier than you hoped, onboarding feels flat, recognition doesn't land, and culture is something everyone talks about but nobody owns.

Programmes aren't behaviour. What people actually do at work is shaped by a different set of forces than the ones your policies address. This course gives you the behavioural science to redesign the entire employee lifecycle, from attraction to exit, not through policy, through design.

Everything in here comes from the behavioural science frameworks we use at SUE with clients across 45+ countries, applied specifically to the employee lifecycle.

WHO IS THIS FOR

Designed for experienced professionals

This course is for you if:

You lead HR or talent and you're tired of initiatives that sound good on stage and change nothing on Monday.

You've rewritten the onboarding three times and new hires still feel lost in week three.

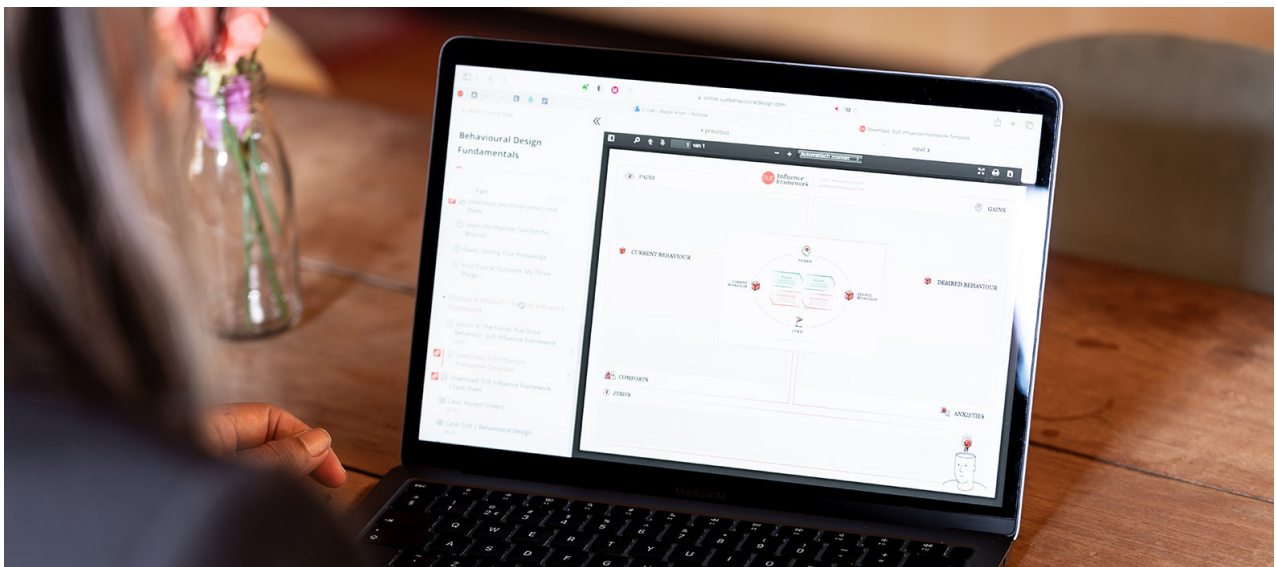

You're a recruiter watching great candidates ghost the process after a two-hour interview.

You run people and culture and you want tools that go beyond 'do a pulse survey'.

You're a team leader who needs talent behaviours you can actually influence.

No prior knowledge needed.

WHAT YOU WILL GAIN

By the end of the course, you'll

- 1 Write job posts that attract by removing fear, not by adding more perks.
- 2 Run interviews that reveal the real person, not the rehearsed one.
- 3 Onboard for belonging, not just information transfer.
- 4 Shape culture through what people do every day, not through what you say in a town hall.
- 5 Recognise in ways that genuinely motivate, without triggering the overjustification effect.
- 6 Design exits that strengthen your employer brand instead of silently damaging it.

CURRICULUM

How the course is built

Three modules. Eleven video lessons. They walk you through the entire employee lifecycle – joining, working, and leaving – with a behavioural lens at every step.

Module 1: 4 lessons

Foundation

Lesson 1:

The missing layer in talent management. System 1 and System 2. Inside-out vs outside-in thinking. The SUE Influence Framework.

Lesson 3:

The forces that shape employee behaviour. The full Influence Framework: Pains, Gains, Anxieties, Comforts.

Lesson 2:

Understanding what people really want. Jobs-to-be-Done for employees. Surface complaints vs underlying needs.

Lesson 4:

The thinking errors that sabotage your talent decisions. Fundamental Attribution Error, Halo Effect, Outcome Bias.

By the end of this module, you can read any HR situation through a behavioural lens instead of a programme lens.

Module 2: 4 lessons

Joining

Lesson 5:

Designing attraction that actually attracts. Job postings through all four forces in the Influence Framework.

Lesson 7:

Designing selection for honest signals. Past behaviour, reducing asymmetry, reducing stereotype threat, structure against bias.

Lesson 6:

The psychology of selection decisions. Interviews as performance systems. WYSIATI, Peak-End Rule, Stereotype Threat.

Lesson 8:

Onboarding as behaviour activation. Belonging uncertainty, self-efficacy, honeymoon-hangover effect, the psychological contract.

After these four lessons, you can redesign your joining process so people arrive with the behaviour you want, not just the information.

Module 3: 3 lessons

Working and leaving

Lesson 9:

Culture is behaviour.
Descriptive vs injunctive norms.
Leaders as signal transmitters.

Lesson 11:

How endings shape everything.
The Peak-End Rule applied to exits.
Departures as identity transitions.

Lesson 10:

Recognition that actually works.
The overjustification effect.
Self-Determination Theory.
Recognition as a broadcast signal.

 You finish the course able to design behaviour across the full employee lifecycle — from the first ad to the final handshake.

WHY SUE

What makes this course different

Most talent courses give you best practices. A framework for engagement. A model for feedback. Useful. But none of it explains why your new hire was excited in week one and invisible in week six. That's what this course is about.

- Built on 15 years of client work across HR, people ops, and leadership teams, not borrowed from a management textbook.
- The SUE Influence Framework applied specifically to talent decisions: attraction, selection, onboarding, recognition, exit.
- Every module comes with AI Prompt Guides, so you apply what you learn the same week you learn it.
- Personal feedback on your real HR challenge.
- Rated 9.7/10 on Springest and 4.8/5 on Google.
